

food, all fodder and material necessary for the feeding of animals which are stocked within the German empire.

The appointment of a "food dictator" in Germany was forecast by the Cologne Gazette on May 15, following the resignation of Clemens Delbrueck as minister of the interior. The resignation of Delbrueck, ostensibly on account of ill health, was declared, in unofficial advice from Berlin, to be due to his failure to deal satisfactorily with the food situation.

F. P. BUCKNUM, LATE OF LIMA, IS DEAD

Prominent Man in Business and Lodge Circles Has Passed Away.

Frank P. Bucknum, former proprietor of the Buckeye Hat store, died at his home in Springfield yesterday, according to information received by Lima lodge of Elks of which he was a member. He was about 55 years of age and for some time has been suffering with tuberculosis.

Mr. Bucknum opened the Buckeye Hat store here on East Market street. The place of business was afterward moved to North Main street, near the public square. The family has been absent from Lima about a year. They spent five or six years in the city.

During their stay here, they resided at the home of Mrs. Dimond at 204 West Market street. The widow is left. Deceased was a member of the Masonic order, of the Odd Fellows and Nacchabees, being a prominent fraternal man. He served as a member of the house committee of the lodge of Elks for one season.

Funeral services will be held Thursday morning in Springfield. Interment will be in that city. Lima lodge of Elks has given arrangements over to Springfield lodge and will not be represented at the services.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to extend our thanks to neighbors and friends for their sympathy and kindness shown to us in our deep sorrow and bereavement.

communication last night putting the finishing touches on it. The original draft was prepared by Secretary Lansing.

The note vigorously protests against further interference with American mails by Great Britain.

The hours struck from the Porto Rican bill today by a vote of 80 to 69, an amendment designed to grant woman suffrage to the islands. The bill then passed without roll call virtually as introduced.

THE IDLER

The home of the late Thomas R. Jones, at 111 North West street, was sold yesterday to William L. Russell, local oil operator. The consideration was given as $20,000.

Preparation toward the opening of the new addition of the Elmer D. Webb Realty company, near the Lima state insane hospital, was begun yesterday. Two streets will be laid through the addition which contains fifteen acres.

Henry O. Cole, 22, of Lima, and Mrs. Helen Cole, 18, of Wapakoneta, were united in marriage in Wapakoneta by Justice of the Peace W. H. Settlage.

Guy Crayton, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Crayton, has given up his place as a member of the engineers' staff of the W. J. Sherman company of Toledo and will establish an office as consulting and civil engineer in Lima.

Frank Hill of Springfield, conductor on the Lima-Springfield limited out of this city at 9:45 o'clock every morning, while sitting on a stump at Russell's Point, engaged in fishing, was precipitated into the water when the stump gave way. He was rescued by men in boats.

Boys and girls taking part in the boys' contest may have assistance in fertilizing, plowing and planting their acre of corn. Aid will be allowed in husking the same. All other work must be done by the boys and girls. The change was made to benefit farmers and prevent congestion of work.

County Commissioner Frank Wright of Cairo, who has been unable to be at the court house since last Friday, due to an affliction of the eye, was able to come down to Lima today and assist commissioners in the transaction of business.

Allen county commissioners met with the commonwealth from Auglaize county this afternoon near Wapakoneta to discuss the advisability of a joint county bridge.

ARMORED CARS PUT ARABS TO FLIGHT IN TRIPOLI DASH

British Travel 115 Miles in Desert to Capture Band of Prisoners.

Plight of Captives Desperate, Starvation Was Near.

SUEZ, Egypt, May 22.—I have just heard the details of the armored car fleet's dash to the rescue of the men of the wrecked ship Tara. It will stand as a classic in motor-ing annals.

When Gen. Lukin reoccupied Sollum in western Egypt, he found that the Arabs had burnt the camp. Ten armored cars came upon a remarkable road, which, starting in the desert, runs to Tobruk, ninety miles away in Tripoli. Over the motor cars had a speed of thirty-five miles an hour.

At Aziza the cars suddenly came upon the Arabs, and dashed into a Turkish mountain gun and two machine guns, killing every gunner by Maxim fire. Then, without a halt, they charged in line over the bowlers, stiff scrub, sandy patches. The charge continued for seven miles.

Three field guns, nine machine guns, hundreds of rifles, spare parts, dynamite, traveling workshops, and a quarter of a million rounds of rifle ammunition were captured.

Some of the camels, hit by machine gun fire, blew to pieces as if struck by a high explosive and then burst into flames. It was found that the Arabs had loaded them with bombs and petrol.

The Duke of Westminster was informed that a letter had been picked up from Capt. Gwatkin Williams to Nuri Bey, complaining that the Tara prisoners were starving and ill, and suggestion that medical comforts should be procured at Sollum. The letter mentioned Bir Hakim as the place of the prisoners' detention.

Every prisoner and refugee was interrogated, but none knew Bir Hakim except a man who said he had fed a flock there thirty years ago. Subsequently, another man, who had been the prisoners' guard, was discovered, and the duke asked permission to attempt a rescue.

Every man in the batteries sat up all night and next day tuning up the machines. The batteries were reinforced by light cars carrying the guns, and all the motor ambulances within traveling range of Sollum were brought in.

There were gathered at the old Turkish fort on the ridge above Sollum nine armored Rolls-Royce cars, five touring cars with guns, light cars—forty-two motors altogether.

At 3 o'clock on St. Patrick's morning the column moved out of the fort.

When the column got eighty miles on the Tobruk road the car turned on the desert due south. After fifteen miles rough-and-tumble over desperately rough ground the party began to feel uncertain of success. The two Arab guides were arguing as to whether they were on the right track; the man who had not seen Bir Hakim since his boyhood thought they were wrong. The other Arab would not say much.

The desert was very stony. A hundred miles went by, and then 105. Still there was not the faintest sign of the Tara prisoners' camp. Between 110 and 115 miles nobody spoke and the silence suggested fears of failure. A mile further on the Arab became animated, on seeing a sort of small mountain.

A halt was called at 2 o'clock and the duke sent forward the armored cars to attack. They raced up to within 200 yards of the mound.

The prisoners were standing silhouetted against the skyline dumb with amazement at the appearance of the strange throbbing fleet.

At last one man threw off the sack covering him and faintly cheered, and the crowd staggered forward in the rolling gait of starved men and awarred round the cars, crying "Are we free?"

They could not be persuaded to leave the cars and slightly hindered the British advance to tackle the guards, all of whom were subsequently killed.

The remainder of the column started a tremendous race to the spot. They ran aboard, not caring for obstacles or punctures, and the air was filled with the cheers of the crews and the noise of the exhausts.

The prisoners' condition was desperate. A heap of white shells showed that snails had been their staple diet. Occasionally they had had goat flesh, but the amount served out was reduced to the size of a skinned mouse, one prisoner said. Parties had gone out daily to find edible roots.

CAPTAIN CLAY IS ORPHEUM PROGRAM

"Captain Clay of Missouri," is the offering of the Chet Keyes players at the Orpheum theatre for the first part of the week. The story tells of the trials and troubles of the owner of a string of race horses.

W. K. Hack, as Captain Clay, portrays in an excellent manner the character of this old southern gentleman. Chet Keyes, as Hod Doan, the jockey, is a big hit. As usual he injects much original comedy in his part. Misses Dot and Helen Keyes also have important parts in the play.

WOMEN'S MINSTRELS TO PROVOKE LAUGHS

Bills This Evening and Tomorrow Will be of High Class.

All is in readiness for the performance of the big minstrel show, which will be staged this evening and tomorrow night at the Lyrio theatre under the auspices of the Theatre Woman's club and for their benefit. The show will be one long, merry laugh.

Aside from prominent young women of the city who will have a part, several performers, who have gained more than an amateur record for fine work, will be included. Miss Lillian Johnston, of Harrod, who has been on the lyceum platform for the past two years, both as singer and reader, will be cast as one of the minstrel performers.

The sale of seats has been large and indications are that when the curtain roll tonight on the opening scene, a large and enthusiastic audience will greet the performers.

TWO BODIES AWAIT FULL IDENTIFICATION

CINCINNATI, O., May 23.—The body of a man believed to be that of Harry Hutchison of Loveland was found on the Baltimore and Ohio S. W. railroad tracks at Thirtieth-fourth street and the railroad in Oakley today. The partial identification was from a railroad pass made out in that name. The body of another man found in the Ohio river Monday night was still unidentified at the morgue today.

Times went ads bring results.

YOUNG LADY WELL KNOWN HERE WILL BE JUNE BRIDE

The marriage of Miss Ava Kathryn Tabler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James J. Tabler of 1368 Belle avenue, Lakewood, Cleveland, has been announced for Wednesday, June 7, at the home of the bride's parents. The service will be at 3.30 o'clock in the afternoon. Miss Tabler will wed George William Gage.

Mrs. Philip A. Shook of 211 South Jameson avenue, Lima, cousin of the bride, will be matron of honor. Miss Mabel A. Harris of Clifton Park, Lakewood, will act as bridesmaid.

James F. Tabler, the bride's brother, will serve Mr. Gage as best man.

Both the bride and her mother have made frequent visits to Lima and are well known here. The young bride is the niece of Mrs. E. W. Mosier of West Market street. The Mosier family will attend the wedding. Mr. Shook will also go to Cleveland for the wedding.

STATES HAND OVER GOLD.

GALVESTON, Texas, May 22.—The Mexican states of Hidalgo, Guanajuato and Zacatecas have sent $66,000,000 in gold to the national treasury for exchange into the new national currency. The money was collected in taxes, chiefly mining concessions. This information is contained in a dispatch from Mexico City received by the Mexican consulate here today.

You can't "spell-bind" many men into liking what they dislike—every man's taste is his own

IF A MANUFACTURER in his advertising tells you (truthfully, as he believes) that he has the "best tasting cigarette in the world" and you believe him, you probably try his cigarette. It may be a very good cigarette. But his over-enthusiasm has led you to expect something almost impossible. You light that cigarette and—

Well, there's a good chance that you're disappointed. It may not be the fault of the cigarette. The cigarette may be mighty good. But you've been led to expect too much. You've been "over-sold."

And besides, tastes differ—who can tell what cigarette will best please your taste before you try it?

That's why we leave the taste of Fatimas entirely up to you. We believe you will like them; but you may not.

To be sure, most men like the taste of Fatimas better than any other cigarette they ever smoked. Figures indicate that. More Fatimas are sold than any other cigarette in the world costing over 5c.

But the taste isn't all. If you do like Fatimas' taste as well as these thousands and thousands of other men do, you'll find a second reason for sticking to them for good. And that reason is that Fatimas will give you cigarette-comfort at all times. This is why they have won the name of being as SENSIBLE a cigarette as a man can find anywhere.

They are comfortable to the throat and tongue. You'll never experience any "sandpaper tickle" or "hotness" in the cool-smoking Turkish blend of Fatimas.

And Fatimas can be smoked more freely than any other cigarette we know of without leaving any mean after-feeling, as some less skillfully blended cigarettes do.

If you have never smoked Fatimas—you should try them.

WARM ANSWER EXPECTED SOON FROM BLUFFTON

print it. Hence only one side of the controversy is presented in the district press thus far.

The Wapakoneta News, out-and-out anti-Cunningham and generally pro-Goeke, refrains from editorial comment but carries the statement with a lengthy summarizing introduction, in which the opinion of the paper is evident. It states that Goeke has been urged to run but does not desire the job, and in view of the loose relationship existing between the paper and the former congressman the remarks might be interpreted as a personal expression. Editor Hoffer is highly eulogistic of the Wapakoneta man and scathing in denunciation of the "parasites" from without the district who have in the recent past endeavored to dictate the policy of the democratic organization of this district, and are still seeking to perpetuate that dictation, to the lasting undoing of the democracy of the old Fourth.

It would not be difficult to guess whom Brother Hoffer has in mind, and as he is about to retire from the game he evidently desires to have a little more fun with those who disagree with him politically.

John L. Sullivan's opinion as expressed in The St. Marys Evening Leader is no milder, but apparently aims at a conciliatory adjustment on a third man. In the headlines he refers to the Goeke proposition as a "reasonable proposition," and limits the introduction to a brief explanation of the article. In a leading editorial, however, under the caption "Mr. Goeke is Magnanimous," he points out that while the Wapakoneta man states that he will run if Cunningham does, he makes it equally plain that he will not run if the Bluffton candidate withdraws. From that basis Sullivan launches into an attack on the latter, stating that the Goeke ultimatum, offering to concentrate on a new man, leaves out or adumbrates the factor of personal rather than party interest. The St. Marys editor also refers to the Cunningham candidacy as "suicidal."

The attitude of the Miami county papers is much the same as that of those in Auglaize, only less vitriolic with regard to Cunningham. This is natural, as this district, Auglaize is Goeke's county while Miami is a new county in the district and without either Cunningham or Goeke as a favorite son. The Piqua Press, Dr. W. J. Prince's newly established organ, is conciliatory and while praising Goeke for his "manly and straightforward statement" urges Cunningham to be "as wise and generous" and come forth with a declaration declaring himself ready to yield to the party's welfare. Dr. Prince is postmaster of the underwear metropolis, but as he the attitude of official and diplomatic circles.

Before the address the members and their guests were treated to a cabaret show worthy of the Grid-iron club of Washington. Caricatures of national figures, well impersonated and speaking of themselves in clever monologue, offered the subject for the playlet. W. C. Fridley and J. B. Kaufman, as heralds, announced the notables in turn. The first was "Atlee Pomerene," represented by Carl K. Rowlands, and for makeup, voice and gesture, he was remarkable accurate. Fred Gooding impersonated Nicholas Longworth, and he was followed by his strenuous father-in-law, Roosevelt, whose part was assumed by "Jack" Beall. Both were true to life and their remarks "brought down the house." James Mooney took the part of President Wilson, while Dr. A. L. Jones appeared as the guest of honor, M. T. Herrick.

The hit of the evening, however, was the appearance of W. J. Bryan. Each notable was announced by the heralds with a fanfare of trumpets, but for the commoner a funeral dirge was played. A coffin, surmounted with a bottle of grape juice and a dove, and followed by pallbearers, was wheeled into the dining hall, but no sooner was it removed than Mack Altshul appeared in the guise of the Nebraskaan. His take-off was more than good. "What's this about me being dead?" he demanded. He then discussed himself in glowing terms, as the rest had done. But soon Diogenes appeared with his lantern, seeking an honest man. After looking over the bunch, telling each why he was not fitted for the choice, he selected the fictitious Herrick. R. W. Austin played the role of the philosopher. The make-up work was superintended by Nicholas Schler of Cincinnati.

Harley Himes' orchestra of nine pieces provided the music during the dinner. Frank E. Baxter was chairman for the evening. At the guest table were Governor Herrick, President W. G. Wemmer, F. E. Baxter, Secretary L. S. Galvin, Charles F. Price, A. E. Gale, P. M. Hulsken, F. D. Cuthbert, D. C. Henderson and Eugene Oppley.

GOVERNOR BARTLETT WILLIS

Did you know that the act of signing a candidate's petition is not binding on the matter of support? Well, it is, and you can sign any man's papers—if you are in his party—just to get a chance to vote against him. The law, according to Clerk Art Morris of the board of elections, says that the signer is swearing to the fact that the candidate is a member of the party, nothing more. Therefore there is nothing to prevent a signer from working against the candidate whose papers he signed. Just like making a motion in order to get an adverse vote, killing the proposition.

FEAR CRISIS PERIL AS BELGIAN AID COMING FROM U. S.

People of Devastated Country See Harm in U. S. German Break.

PARIS, May 22.—"When the Germans on their march towards Paris," says Maurice Maeterlinck, the poet and playwright, today, "were only 30 kilometers from St. Wandrille, we hid all our choice wines, packed up all our manuscripts and the silverware and left for the castle of a friend of mine, who has a chateau further inland."

Since then Maeterlinck, at the request of King Albert of Belgium, has worked tirelessly to relieve the sufferings of the Belgian people.

"Even in time of peace," Maeterlinck said, "Belgium is able to produce only two-thirds of the amount of grain needed to feed her population. The rest has to be imported. The war broke out just when we were harvesting, and, cut off from the rest of the world, as the Belgian people have been since then, they have had to see the German armies confiscating and carrying away every pound of food within the country."

"And that was not all, the Germans also carried off every other thing they were able to use, coal and machinery, cotton goods and woolens, raw or manufactured, leaving nothing behind, devastating the country like an immense swarm of locusts."

"A few branches of industry they have started again, as for instance the arms factories at Liege, but as the Belgian workmen have refused to manufacture arms to be used against their own countrymen, thousands of them are idle, and the Germans refuse to do anything for them if they refuse to work. The same thing happened in many other activities."

"The Belgian postal and railroad officials have thus refused to work under the Prussians, as this would mean high treason. It is absolutely untrue that the German administration has done anything whatever to assist the starving population. In Belgium the German administration has done one thing only—it has continued its plundering of the country."

"In one respect only, the Germans have had sense enough to behave in a proper manner—they have not yet attempted to take any of the huge quantities of food which the noble American people have sent into Belgium via Holland. You Americans are practical people and the way your countrymen have organized and carried out the charitable work which has saved hundreds of thousands of Belgian lives is worthy of the highest admiration. We shall never forget the debt of gratitude we owe to the people of the greatest republic in the world."

"It is not only the poor among my countrymen at home who are dependent on the food sent from America. As there is absolutely no food in the country, even the well-to-do and rich are compelled to get their food through the committee at a suitable price. Whenever a cargo is delayed for some reason or other, almost the entire population of Antwerp gathers on the quays and waits for the steamer in despair and fear that it may have been torpedoed by the enemy."

"Should war break out between the United States and Germany or should the relations become so strained that Germany did not feel inclined to respect the integrity of the American food ships I shudder to think what would happen to these poor people; they would die from starvation as surely as if they were afloat on a raft in the middle of the ocean."

"Do you still get news from Belgium?" he was asked.

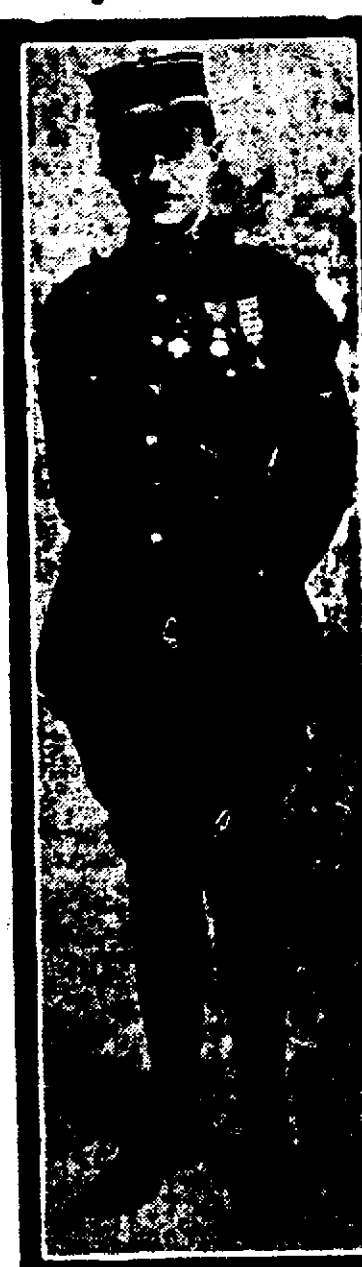

"Only very rarely, and the letters I do receive are written in such a manner that you have to read between the lines to find out what the writer really wants to say. I am afraid that conditions in my unhappy country are far worse than I have any idea of. It is a very dangerous matter to send letters out of Belgium, and to send them through the post is, of course, out of the question."

"Some time ago there were messengers who at a charge of 20 francs ($4) a letter, undertook to get them across the frontier into Holland, but now most of these messengers have been caught and shot by the Germans. To send a letter, too, is dangerous. Not long ago my own cousin was shot because of an imprudent utterance in a letter."

"My brother is a notary at Ghent. With his wife and children he tried to get across the Dutch frontier, but was caught. 'You are a notary,' the Germans said, 'you must return to Ghent and remain at your post.' His wife and children were allowed to pass, and are now in London. Through her I know that seven German non-commissioned officers are billeted with my brother. They feel very much at home and have drunk all his wine."

"But even worse things may be in store for my poor country. What we fear more than anything else is that the Germans, when compelled to withdraw from the country, will blow up all the towns they have spared heretofore, Ghent, Bruges,

A Boy Hero of France.

M. GUYONEMER.

This is what Herbert Corey, the famous war correspondent, perhaps the best American observer of the European war, wrote, some weeks ago, about Guyonemer, the first photo of whom is shown here:

If you lived in France you would know who Guyonemer is. The picture of this slender boy from college is in the illustrated magazines and in the columns of the daily papers and in the windows of the shops. He is the most celebrated airman in France—unless the most celebrated airman in France is Navarre. There is the Navarre school of thought and the Guyonemer school of thought along the boulevards. Partisans of the two waggle their hands busily at each other and shout and close the argument by drinking a health to the pair.

Guyonemer was the first French airman to bring down five enemies. His score now touches eight, and he has done it all in four months. Navarre has also brought down eight German fliers, according to one count. Another method of computation only allows him credit for seven. It is this that gives rise to the drinking shop debates over the pair. It is astonishing how much energy can be wasted over the interpretation of facts which have been set forth in the official communiqué. An evidence of the standing of the pair is that the rule of anonymity has been waived by the censor for both France is following their fight for supremacy with almost breathless interest.

and Brussels. They seem to take a particular delight in destroying everything they cannot carry off, or are forced to give up. The devastation of Flanders has filled my heart with sorrow.

"From my earliest childhood I have loved Ypres and Dixmude. They seemed to be part of my very soul. As a boy I always spent my summer vacation at Ypres. Now nothing is left of the wonderful old houses. I feel this as a great void in my existence."

"But how glorious it will be when the day arrives when they are driven out of the country across the Rhine. I am afraid we shall get them no further."

"After the war will come years of feverish work to build up what has been destroyed. We shall pass through a period of poverty and destitution. But nature is rich. Far quicker than we now think, the destroyed activities will arise from their ruins. The wheels of the factories will whirl, and the crops of our fertile fields will obliterate the tracks of the hated enemy."

"Before the war the Belgians were a nation somewhat artificially made, consisting of widely different races, each having its own language. The heroism of the country, the sacrifices and almost incredible sufferings of these years have welded the Belgians into one people, one nation. Nobody will doubt any longer the right of existence of these people. It is possible that the misfortune of Belgium will become the foundation of her happiness. At any rate, the calamity which has happened to Belgium has not been in vain, for it has shown us that also in the lives of the nations there is justice and retribution. There is retribution all ways, even when we do not see it."

"If Germany had gone out of this war victorious, the German people would have got their punishment anyway, because a victorious, but unjust, war always ends in demoralizing the victor, in giving him habits and vices, which cause him to pay dearly for his triumph."

"Some statesmen talk of giving Belgium an indemnity in the form of an extension of territory. I do not see how this might be done, but a material, substantial indemnity from Germany will help the Belgian people to recover."

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Reynolds of Cleveland, are the guests of Mrs. D. R. Reynolds.

SECURE POINTERS FOR NEW Y. M. C. A.

The first meeting of the building committee for the new Y. M. C. A. building was called for yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The chief purpose of the meeting at this time was to confer with Neil McMillen, head of the Y. M. C. A. Building Bureau of the International committee of New York City, and A. H. Lichty, state secretary of the Y. M. C. A. Only three members of the committee were present: B. F. Thomas, E. J. Maize and Henry S. Enck. The other members of the committee, R. J. Plate, Henry G. Wemmer and Henry A. Mack, were unavoidably absent, Mr. Plate owing to the very serious illness of his mother. The three members of the committee, who were present, however, very greatly profited by the information secured from Mr. McMillen. The object of the building bureau is to make available for building committees the experiences of associations all over the country with the various and difficult problems of erecting an association building, and while organized only about a year they are already in position to offer much valuable help.

Mr. McMillen pointed out to the committee that an association building offers a very intricate architectural problem, having some features of a hotel, an athletic club, a boys club, an educational institution, and a religious institution all rolled into one and all under one roof. It makes problems that are solved only by years of experience. Mr. McMillen pointed out some of the problems that the building committee need to investigate very closely, such as proper sanitation and ventilation, the proper mechanical equipment for efficiency and economy, the question of building supervision, the relative needs of the boys and men, the number of dormitories required and the proportionate number of shower baths, etc. He pointed out also the fact that the building is not the Association and that the building should represent an ideal and should not be a mere copy of a building at some other place, but should be built for the needs of Lima. He very strongly advised the committee to visit a number of the best Association buildings in this and adjoining states in order that they may come in contact with building committees in other cities and familiarize themselves with the problems that they met with. As soon as all the members of the committee can get together, they will organize and lay definite plans for immediate action.

CRIDERSVILLE MEMORIAL SERVICES DRAW CROWD. Mart Armstrong post and Woman's Relief corps accepted the invitation to attend Memorial services, held Sunday in the Methodist church at Cridersville. Veterans and members of the Relief corps from Wapakoneta also mingled in the exercises.

The Rev. W. W. Constain, of Lima, pastor of the Cridersville church, delivered the sermon, which was a great pleasure to the veterans. Mrs. Constain delighted with vocal numbers.

Mrs. Laura E. Louthan, of Lima, in well-chosen words, on behalf of the Woman's Relief corps, presented the church and Sabbath school with a beautiful silk flag. Mrs. Louthan closed her remarks by saying, in presentation, "Your flag, my flag, the people's flag, the flag that makes men free." The response, on behalf of the church and school, was made by the Rev. Mr. Constain.

LOYAL MOOSE TO HOLD SMOKER FRIDAY. Members of the local lodge, Loyal Order of Moose, will entertain Friday evening at a smoker, the admission to be applied to defraying the expenses of the trip to Ft. Wayne during Centennial week. The Moose Defenders are to be the hosts, the smoker to be held in Moose hall, at Main and Spring streets. Admission will be 50 cents.

During the Indiana Centennial week, June 5-12, the local degree team will attend the celebration at Fort Wayne, meeting with similar delegations from many parts of the United States. The supreme officers of the national organization will be in attendance, as well as prominent Moose leaders, such as Vice President Thomas R. Marshall, former Vice President Fairbanks, and others high in Indiana Moose circles.

G. A. Williams, G. W. Brentlinger, L. E. Mortimer and D. H. Doherty compose the committee in charge of the smoker.

GENERAL STORES TO PLAN HALF HOLIDAY. Business Places May Close One Afternoon Each Week.

A movement to close dry goods stores and places of business in the city one afternoon of each week during the summer is said to be crystallizing among merchants. For some years groceries and meat markets have been closing for a half holiday the middle of the week to give employees a chance to recruit for the end of the busy week following. It is believed the same could be as easily accomplished among other merchants and that results be obtained which would redound to the credit of both merchant and patron, as well as given the salesman and woman a needed respite from their duties.

The matter may be referred to the Chamber of Commerce for their sanction or disapproval.

AMERICANISM

Former Governor Herrick's plea for Americanism of the new type, as voiced before members of the Rotary club and their guests at the Elks last night, should appeal to all who were fortunate enough to have heard it. Not only they, but others who hear of the remarks of the Cleveland man through an intermediate source, should pause to digest the sentiments expressed.

The Herrick of today is hardly comparable to the Herrick whose administration fell with a crash eleven years ago. His nomination in 1903 was the culmination of the power of the Hanna-Dick machine, and he was touted as another McKinley, who would make the state house a stepping-stone to the White House. Those guesses failed, and after 1905 the banker was pronounced a dead end by political specialists. But were they right?

Until an opportunity presents itself for fuller revelation of ability, many men are forced to remain in obscurity after their first setback. Herrick refused the treasury portfolio offered by Taft in 1909, but accepted the French embassy in order to study foreign finance close hand. That was when Europe was at peace, and like Brand Whitlock, Herrick expected to find rest and quiet abroad.

The experiences between August 4 and December, 1914, proved for the former governor a baptism of fire. Only in such experiences can we hope to bring out the real essence of any man. The Herrick who went to defeat John M. Patterson was a mere politician. The Herrick who spoke last evening is a statesman, showing a humanitarian side not to be expected in his former self. That is what the war has done for him. Without being a witness of the Battle of the Marne he could never have made that speech.

Americanism is generous courage, generosity, sympathy and willingness to serve when called by duty. Thousands of wealthy American expatriates, residing in Paris to enjoy the gay life of the cafes and salons, forgot their love of phylloxera on the first call. Hospital organized by Americans have proved the best in France. American surgical systems have been adopted by the French army. Red Cross workers of both sexes, imbalanced drivers and nurses, most on all sides from among the despised American matrons riches. Struggling students of art and music joined forces with millionaires. On all sides America helped to aid France with active munitions which offers help to the suffering of all nations.

In this nation he said we have donated $30,000,000 to relief of Europe's suffering—thirty cents apiece. A small sum in view of what we can spare without appreciable effort. College boys by thousands spent their vacations in Red Cross work, driving ambulances on the field of battle. Metropolitan newspapers launched campaigns to raise food and clothing for the children of the belligerent zone. Even towns were collected to fill the hold of the Jenson, the Christmas ship of a year and a half ago.

This, according to Mr. Herrick, shows the new Americanism. For years Europe has told us that a nation we are men money chasers. Abroad we were held up as examples of frivolity, selfishness and selfishness. Today the gratitude of those who have aided overrides all attempts of officialdom to detract with changing events the sympathies of the populace. In the first the real Americanism has come to the surface, as it always will when needed, and if we can but keep it always in the front, in peace as well as in war, we will have solved our greatest moral problem. That was Mr. Herrick's message.

FOWLER'S PLATFORM

Through some mistake, evidently, we are in receipt of a copy of the platform for the Republican party proposed by former Congressman Charles N. Fowler of Elizabeth, New Jersey. It is included in a Republican monthly magazine called Prosperity. It is worth examination.

Now perhaps Fowler does not recall the soup houses of '13 or the breadlines of '15, but we will forego comment on the title of his magazine. His platform is interesting in that it offers a series of planks absolutely opposite to the record of his party. Look at the following:

Merchant marine, justice for colored voters, civil service, suffrage, world peace, equal suffrage and a dozen similar planks are advocated by the Elizabethan. What is the record of the Republican party on these issues?

The last vestige of an American merchant marine was torpedoed by the La Follette seaman's bill, a measure which was introduced into congress and championed throughout by a Republican senator from Wisconsin. The colored voters have been supporting the party for half a century, only to be made the dupes and cat-paws of unscrupulous administrations in national conventions. Civil service was inaugurated by Cleveland, a Democrat, and opposed by Republicans. Was Hanna adverse to playing patronage for his own ends? Did Roosevelt increase the scope of the civil service? Only when confronted with inevitable defeat, and to a greater degree after his elimination in 1912, did Taft extend the system in order to keep from the Democrats a few thousand appointments.

The very landscape seems to stamp the hold that European conquerors have laid on the country as impertinent presumption. The fort lies at the foot of a ring of mountains, and the fort itself is more than twelve thousand feet high. There are not many peaks in North America higher. Yet the little canyons are dwarfed by nothingness by the rocky masses about it. Towering to the northward seemingly a stone-throw away in the clear atmosphere is great Kinchenjunga, the highest peak in the world excepting only Mount Everest. A whole rank of lesser apices rise snow-capped to the left and right of the giant.

About the mountains is a vast calm and dignity—the dignity of open spaces of endless distance and massive bulk. A storm that rises in the snow-fields may travel furiously for miles, and seem only a dark, insignificant blur on the placid white surface. Great forests of evergreen that clothe the flanks of the mountains dwindle to a green fur on the clear distance. Everything is on a scale so gigantic that the accustomed eye loses all sense of proportion, refuses to accept the steep-sided cleft as a valley, walled with 1,000 foot precipices, or the patch of green on the farther side as a forest. It would take a day to traverse.

The fort itself was formerly the home of a little English garrison. The visitor wonders how these men spent the days and months cut off from the world save for the passing traders bound for Tibet, and the post that came when snow and storm permitted. He wonders what changes in men's minds are worked by long silent hours with such immensities of height and distance continually before the eye. Wherever his gaze turns it is confronted by the same immensity and grandeur. The view is one of the noblest imaginable after a few weeks of it. The English officer must have longed for a sight of comfortably cropped green meadows, flat and home like, circled by well-trimmed hedges.

A Times-Democrat want ad will bring results.

There is just one thing we can't understand about this Goeke-Cunningham controversy. Why not include Riddle and Hunt and make it a good one?

The winner of the last two state Corn Boy contests was Dewey Hanes of Arcanum, Darke county, Fourth Ohio district. Perhaps Riddle is fore-sighted.

We beg to suggest that catch dates fight it out on the street and settle their differences in that manner. Paper is getting scarce.

At a rough guess, it would almost seem that Messrs. Cunningham and Goeke are not going to support one another in the primary.

GOOD EVENING—The race track is all right but there is no small amount of fun outdoors is long as short and here are having a contest in the afternoon.

NEW NOTES FROM MOVIELAND

By DAISY DEAN

WELSH RABBIT are well known to most people for the dreaded haunting visions that follow their consumption. But Virgil Martin, the popular little screen star, has no fear of consequences. She makes rabbits her pet and eats them ravenously. Acting before the camera affords Miss Martin many thrills at the Morosco film studio in Los Angeles and she is most happy when doing a big dramatic part. However, when the day's work is done and she is at home in her pretty bungalow, she makes rabbits in the manner shown in the picture, just to prove to her friends that her abilities do not all lie in screen acting.

Lots of laughs in "Hase Hall Bill." The second of the Hase Hall series to be known as "Base Hall Bill," is now in production under the direction of Smiling Billy Mason. Many of the big punches of this comedy are occasioned by a new device for "Preparedness" in the form of a powerful magnet which snatches all metal from the hands of the enemy. In this Bill and Penelope have some very notable experiences when they are overtaken by old man Hard Luck. The coming genius of the diamond, in order to satisfy his hunger, is forced to wear the garb of a woman, playing the role of a hashlinger, where he woos the Swede who owns the beanyery. Supporting Mason in this are O. C. Jackson, Al Russell and Victor Potel.

"The Vallants of Virginia," a screen adaptation of the Hallie Erminie Rives novel of the same name, is being filmed by the Selig company. The subject will be in five reels, with Kathryn Williams as the star, and the cast will consist of practically every member of the Los Angeles studio stock company.

Lionel Barrymore, who recently made a Metro picture entitled "Dorothy's Divorce," with Grace Valentine working opposite him, is to be starred alone in a picture called "The Quitter."

Vivian Martin making a Welsh rabbit.

Her friends say that if she gets tired of being an actress she can take up cooking. She is now working on a multiple-reel feature which will be released in a few weeks.

Blanche Sweet of the Lasky forces is completing a photoplay called "The Thousand-Dollar Husband." James Young is directing.

GNATONG

Now and again the world traveler stumbles on some out-of-the-way nook in a far country that lights up in a single flash all the dusty volumes that have been written on the conquest of the world by the white-skinned races. Such a nook is the little, lonely lost fort of Gnatong on the slope of the Himalayas.

The very landscape seems to stamp the hold that European conquerors have laid on the country as impertinent presumption. The fort lies at the foot of a ring of mountains, and the fort itself is more than twelve thousand feet high. There are not many peaks in North America higher. HEALTHHINTS

IF RESISTANCE IS SLOW GERMS BRING DISEASE

Many people know but little of the consequences of bad eyes, unless blindness, or sore eyes are threatened or present. People who are blind or whose eyes are hopelessly diseased are usually taken care of in institutions and do not become a menace to the public.

But school children whose eyes look right, but have certain diseases or defects that render study and education a hardship may become a danger to other people.

SOON FALLS BEHIND
 A school child, born with an undetected cataract, or who is so nearsighted he cannot see the blackboard soon falls behind his class and becomes discouraged with his school life.

A child with far sight or astigmatism, or some muscular defect of the eyes which causes headache, will contract a dislike for books, study and education, and will perhaps be punished for something for which he really is not to blame.

Children whose educational progress is embarrassed by reason of uncorrected physical defects, soon acquire a loathing for education and all that education represents. The seeds of idleness and irresponsibility being sown, they may develop into criminals or dependents.

Greatest Barrier.
 Education is one of the greatest barriers to crime and poverty. It is therefore essential that children should be well educated and that bad eyes or any other physical or mental defects, be detected and corrected.

RHEUMATIC PAIN STOPPED

The drawing of muscles, the soreness, stiffness and agonizing pain of Rheumatism quickly yield to Sloan's Liniment. It stimulates circulation to the painful part. Just apply as directed to the sore spots. In a short time the pain gives way to a tingling sensation of comfort and warmth. Here's proof—"I have had wonderful relief since I used your Liniment on my knee. To think one application gave me relief. Sorry I haven't space to tell you the history. Thanking you for what your remedy has done for me."—James S. Ferguson, Philadelphia, Pa. Sloan's Liniment kills pain. 25c at drug-gists.

TREATS ANIMALS' TEETH.

In order that the teeth of domestic pets may be given proper attention a dental department has of late been established in the Angell Memorial hospital, a Boston institution for the medical and surgical treatment of dumb animals.

Dogs, cats and other animals are cared for by experienced practitioners who work upon them with all most as much care as if they were human. Even to many admirers of dogs, the thought of giving attention to an animal's teeth may positively seem odd. Yet the importance of doing so is very apparent to anyone who realizes the close connection between good teeth and good health.

So far the dental work has been confined chiefly to cleaning teeth, treating infected gums and extracting, now and then, a decayed tooth. The department, however, is well equipped with instruments, and it is understood that other work will also be undertaken—Popular Mechanics.

THE HOUSEWIFE'S PRIDE

The housewife who serves pure, home-baked bread makes the home a delight and a pleasure to all. She shows true motherly pride by giving to her family the most wholesome and strengthening of foods.

All foods consist substantially of fats, carbohydrates, (starches and sugars) and proteins (white of egg, gluten, lean meats etc.). These three substances sustain, nourish and repair the human body. These are the average percentages contained in seven representative staple foods, as shown by U. S. Department of Agriculture Bulletin No. 142:

	Fats	Carbohydrates	Proteins
Wheat flour 1.0	75.1	11.4
Potatoes 0.1	14.7	1.8
Beef, sirloin 16.1	--	16.5
Butter 85.0	--	1.0
Milk 4.0	5.0	2.5
Salt codfish 0.4	--	18.0
Eggs 5.3	--	13.1

Note the high percentages of proteins and carbohydrates in wheat flour. The butter spread on bread and the shortening used in making biscuits, supply the fat that makes these flour foods the balanced ration.

Pride of Lima.
 The perfect family flour. Made from home grown winter wheat.

Charm.
 Spring wheat flour made in Lima and better than the shipped flour.

Model Best.
 A fancy patent flour made from selected winter and spring wheats. Costs more than other flour, worth it.

Choice Family.
 A cheaper flour, excellent for family, makes so much delicious food as the others but not so light and white.

BANDELLER GREAT AMERICAN, WILL GET MONUMENT

Man, But Little Known,
Scholar and Scientist
With Pioneer Spirit.

UNCOVERS OLD LORE

Lays Basis For History of
Indian and Spanish
Southwest.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 22.—A proclamation just issued by President Wilson sets aside a tract of land in central New Mexico for a national monument. The tract is to be known as the Bandeller Monument. To all but a few Americans the name of Bandeller means little or nothing. Yet Adolph Bandeller was one of our great men, a man whose career was as colorful and adventurous as that of some medieval knight-errant who occupied a unique place as an American historian and an American author.

Have you ever read a novel called "The Delight Makers"? The chances are you have not. The book was published 26 years ago, ran through two small editions and today is out of print. It is practically impossible to secure a copy now. Yet "The Delight Makers" is one of the most remarkable contributions to American literature—nothing less than a romance whose scene and plot are laid in pre-Columbian days, whose characters are all Pueblo Indians. They are the only true and like-life American Indian characters in literature. They are drawn not from the imagination, but from flesh and blood. For that was Bandeller's great work—the reconstruction of a vanished age by a study of its own living remnants. In that work he braved a 100 perils, risked his life scores of times.

Bandellers laid the foundation for a real history of our Indian and Spanish southwest. He lived among the Indians for years, leading their rude life, sharing their good times and bad, speaking their language, adopted by them into their tribes. He had the mind of a scholar and a scientist with the temper of a pioneer.

He traveled on foot and horseback over the wildest regions of the southwestern United States forty years ago, when the Indians of that section were still on the war-path. He carried no weapons but a light stick a metre long, that was graduated for making measurements. He was beset repeatedly by hostile Indians, and once only saved his life by playing on a well-known Indian superstition and pretending to be insane. The Indians have a superstitions fear of insanity, and will never harm a lunatic.

On another occasion he was stricken with small-pox on one of his solitary journeys and almost perished. Again, he was caught in a winter blizzard on the great plains of eastern New Mexico. Two companions who were with him succumbed to the storm, but Bandeller's own physical strength and determination pulled him through after a 80 mile ride and a 35 mile walk through deep snow. He went wherever there was a promise of finding something that could forward his work, regardless of risk.

Danger from hostile Indians, from hunger or exposure had no terrors for him. His one fear was of thirst—the relic of a stern experience when he lost himself in the rocky waterless hill country of New Mexico and wandered days under a blazing sun, pursuing mocking mirages of water until he fell from his horse at the point of death. At the last moment his life was saved by a party from Santa Fe who had set out to look for him.

The unique feature of Bandeller's work was the method he employed. He had the typical scientific temperament—exact, patient and careful, willing to pay any price for truth. But he believed that the truth was to be found among the living Indians and their communities as well as in old ruins and dusty documents. So he went and lived among them, learned their dialects, and carefully collected and collated their traditions and stories. He exploded a score of established and erroneous beliefs by this method.

For instance, the tract just set aside as the Bandeller National Monument includes certain old cliff-dwellings near Santa Fe, New Mexico. It was long believed that the inhabitants of these caves in the rock belonged to a race since dead and vanished. Romantic tradition ascribed all manner of impossible characteristics to these people. Bandeller proved that the cliff-dwellers were simply the forefathers of the present Pueblo Indians, and very much the same sort of people. He gleaned his evidence while living in the pueblos of Cochiti, of Zuni and Jelela. He was made a member of the tribe of Cochiti. The scene of his novel, "The Delight Makers" is laid in these old cliff-dwellings, and the characters are drawn from real Pueblo Indians, whom he knew intimately.

In the same way he exploded all manner of myths relating to life in the northwest before the landing of Columbus. He laid the foundation for a real history of one of the most romantic and colorful sections of the United States. The work he did later in Peru and Bolivia was of the same nature. By living among the Indians there he showed that many of the accepted romantic notions of the ancient Incas were founded on nothing more than the imagination of Indians and old Spanish chroniclers. He did more than tear down accepted beliefs; he worked until he found the truth to put in their place.

The importance of Bandeller's contribution to the sciences of history and archaeology can hardly be over estimated. It seems one of the wildest whims of circumstances that a man of his calibre and accomplishments should be comparatively so little known. Yet this fact is due in no small part to his own character. He had a great dislike for ostentation and notoriety. He even disliked having any title, such as "doctor," or "professor" attached to his name. "I prefer nothing," he would say; "for I'm in good health; don't doctor me. If you must put a handle to my name, call me Mister." He was of a retiring type, being rather exclusive by nature. But wherever he lived for any time in the course of his work as at Santa Fe, he made many warm friends.

The story of Bandeller's life is a striking example of how a man will find the line of work for which he is naturally fitted in spite of circumstances. He did not make his first field expedition until he was almost 40 years old. He was born in Switzerland, but came to the United States as a small child. His father was engaged in a banking and general business in Highland, Illinois, where he was Swiss consul as well.

Bandeller early showed the remarkable aptitude as a linguist, that was to stand him a good stead later. When he was eight years old, he was writing French and German letters for his father's consular office.

He learned English rapidly, and also taught himself Spanish. In later life he became so proficient in this language that he frequently acted as a native Latin American. Most of his immense stock of general knowledge he derived out for himself for he never attended school after his eight year. He was a tireless worker, for he believed that a man in his field could not afford to be a specialist. He must be at once a historian, an archaeologist, and ethnologist and an anthropologist. That Bandeller attained.

He was always distinguished for his remarkable memory. From 1905 to 1911 he suffered from what was practically a temporary blindness, due to cataract. During this period he went on with his work with the help of his wife. He had little or no trouble in locating references in his large library. Almost when he wanted a particular passage, he could refer to it without hesitation by volume and even by the number of the page that contained it.

His passion for certainty and accuracy was extreme. He projected a whole series of novels such as "The Delight Makers," of its early history. He had gone so far as to write several chapters of a second book laid in the time of the Spanish conquerors, when he touched a point where it was necessary to describe an ink-well of the period. He had no such ink-well and he was unable to find one. So he laid aside the book until he should come across a suitable ink-well. Afterward he searched for that trifle through half the museums of Europe but he never found it, and never went on with it.

When he made his trip to south America, his first wife died, and in Lima, Peru, he married Fannie Ritter, who for more than 20 years was with him in all his field and library work. She was peculiarly well fitted to be of assistance to Bandeller, for she speaks fluently half a dozen modern languages, and several Indian dialects as well. Her influence over the Indians is even greater than was his, for the aborigines hold her in a sort of supernatural regard, crediting her with supernatural powers of intuition and healing. Their camps in the Andes, says Mrs. Bandeller, often took on the aspect of a dispensary, from the number of Indians who came to be cured of their ailments.

In her husband's research work, Mrs. Bandeller was of great assistance in exploring the archives of many libraries in many languages. She speaks of the dust in the library at the City of Mexico as worse than the dust of their desert encampments. She translated for the first time into English the Journal of Cabeza de Vaca on his trip from Florida to the Pacific in the years 1528-36, which Bandeller edited. Cabeza de Vaca was the first European to cross the American continent.

In her husband's field work, Mrs. Bandeller was always with him, in mountain and desert. In the museums of this country are more than 1,400 human skulls, which the Bandellers collected in their investigations, and all these skulls Mrs. Bandeller took out of the earth, cleaned and prepared for shipment, for the Indians absolutely refuse to touch them.

Bandeller died in 1914, in Spain, where he had gone to do research work in the library of Madrid. He left unfinished a monumental work on the Indian pueblos of the Rio Grande, from Colorado to the Gulf. Mrs. Bandeller will publish as much of his commentary to this work as he had completed, as well as all the documents he had purposed incorporating with it. She also intends to publish a new edition of the "Delight Makers," a project that will have the support of every friend of American literature, for the book is unique and absolutely American as well as a work of art.

It was unfortunate that Bandeller did not receive more fully during his life-time the recognition outside historical and archaeological circles that was his due. The setting aside of the Bandeller Monument is a fitting recognition of one of our great men.

AVOID SPRING COLDS.
Sudden changes, high winds, shifting seasons cause colds and grippe, and these spring colds are annoying and dangerous and are likely to turn into a chronic summer cough. In such cases take a treatment of Dr. King's New Discovery, a pleasant Laxative Tar Syrup. It soothes the cough, checks the cold and helps break up an attack of grippe. It's already prepared, no mixing or fussing. Just ask your druggist for a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery. Tested and tried for over 40 years.

ELEVEN AUTOS BURN.
CLEVELAND, O., May 22.—Eleven automobiles were destroyed here early this morning in a fire in the Parkwood garage. Firemen fought for two hours to keep the flames from spreading. Explosions came when the fire reached the gasoline tank. The loss is estimated at $10,000.

QUITS ARCTIC SEAS AS OTHERS REMAIN

Chicagoan Arrives at Copenhagen, Leaving Explorers Behind.

LONDON, May 22.—The first member of the American Arctic Crocker land expedition, Prof. Maurice C. Tanquary of Chicago, arrived at Copenhagen today on the steamship Hans Egede from Greenland. He reported good scientific results had been obtained by the expedition.

The remaining members of the exploring party, which is headed by Donald E. MacMillan, have been forced to stay at North Star bay as the relief ship Cluett was unable to get through the ice.

The Crocker land expedition sailed from New York July 2, 1913, with the main object of reaching and mapping the northern land which Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary reported he sighted in 1906 and which he named Crockerland.

Although MacMillan went far enough north and west in the first five months of 1914 to enable him to announce definitely, he reported that Crocker land did not exist, the explorer decided to remain in the Arctic for at least another year and to continue his explorations.

In May, 1915, it was decided to send the George H. Cluett, the Grenfell association steamer, to Etah with a relief expedition. The relief vessel sailed from New York, June 9, 1915, but met with bad ice conditions in Melville bay, her arrival in the North Star bay being delayed until September 12, and she failed to reach Etah.

Mr. Tanquary was chairman of the zoological work of the party. He is a graduate of the University of Illinois.

FT. WAYNE'S GREAT CELEBRATION.

All eyes are centered upon Fort Wayne these days on account of the announcement that that city is about to pull off the biggest of all of this year's centennial celebrations on the first week in June.

It is difficult to conceive of the bigness of the work of preparing for the great Fort Wayne historic pageant and for the Fort Wayne industrial exposition and New York Hippodrome attractions.

For weeks, a large corps of workmen has been engaged in erecting an amphitheatre to seat 14,000 people, facing a monster stage for the pageant on which will be presented the story of Fort Wayne in six stupendous scenes.

Over 1,100 visitors are required for the production. This great play will be given three nights only, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, June 6, 7 and 8.

SURFACE VALUE

NOT long ago I heard the following remark: "I really think one doesn't know her when they first meet her. There seems to be quite a lot about her character that she doesn't show. In fact I'm growing to like her." Right away I was interested in knowing who that person was. She was just the sort of a person I wanted to know. She was just the sort of a person worth knowing. Not that I care about the person who is complex in their thinking and their actions, but the person who is simple with a reserve force, and a person that improves with the age of friendship, is always interesting. How monotonous the man or woman grows whose mental and physical abilities are revealed to one at the first few meetings. And how vastly different the man or woman who reveals a new interest with acquaintance. Often we meet persons with attractive manner, a certain charm of personality, and we decide right off that we like them. On the other hand there comes along a person who is not quite so attractive, with evidently a little less of the personal charm and we quickly say we don't care so much about them. We are judging people by their surface value, and we will go on doing the same thing for time unending. And, indeed, it is all one can do until one has had the advantage of a closer acquaintance with the person in question. The point, however, of the whole matter is, that it very seldom pays one to express their opinion about a person they do not know. It is the same principle of the spark of the divine in everyone—there is something interesting in everyone, and as a general rule the person with the most to offer is the person that will bear the longest acquaintance. Surface value will go so far, it has to go so far, but there is a decided limit, and the person with only that value will never be able to recognize other than his kind. And yet we all should present the best we have, for we are judged off hand by that. But it is always well to remember that it isn't surface value that will count in the race. It may win us our position, but we certainly have to show more in order to keep our place.

MARIEN NAGEL

Seek among your associates those who know more than you. —Schumann.

MISS HELEN KLINGER. of West Spring street, entertained the members of the Jitarsu Tau club at her home last evening. Euchre was the diversion of the evening, and prizes were won by Miss Allene Hoyer of the club members and Miss Gail Parmenter of the guests. At the conclusion of the games a delicious lunch was served by the hostess assisted by her mother, Mrs. William Klinger, Miss Ola Klinger and Miss Marie Nagel.

Guests at the meeting other than the club members were the Misses Gail and Ruth Parmenter, Meriam Clippinger, Marie Nagel, Florence Kolter, of Wapakoneta, Audrey Akerman, Gladys Seebers, Mrs. Philip Lichtig, and Mrs. Frank Seals.

Mrs. J. I. Smith, of South Cole street, will have as her guest during the week, her daughter, Mrs. Walter Bliven, of Philadelphia.

At a lovely luncheon last evening given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Allen, Miss Faye Allen announced her coming marriage to William Toonman, of Kalamazoo, Mich. The announcement was made at a luncheon, the secret being concealed in tiny red hearts which came with the last course. A color scheme of red and white was carried out in the decorations which were carnations, candles and red hearts. The Misses Viola Allen and Helen Brown assisted Mrs. M. L. Allen in serving. Miss Allen is the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Allen, of South Jameson avenue, and numbers a host of friends in the younger social set. Mr. Toonman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Toonman, of Kalamazoo, Mich. The wedding will take place in June.

Those present were the Misses Ruth Macalvine, Hazel Dawson, Ruth Allen, Bess McCrery, Myrtle Smith, Mrs. Ray Ossenbach and Mrs. Harry Ward.

Members of the C. G. L. club which is composed of the girls employed at the Lima Locomotive works will give a dance Thursday evening at the Laux academy. All friends are invited to attend.

When one entertains more or less frequently, it is not always easy to remember just which dishes different friends especially like. One week-end guest takes sugar on grapefruit, another does not; one friend is particularly fond of buttered toast at breakfast, another comes especially for the southern waffles which are so seldom served. To solve this problem, and be sure to have just the dishes which each guest most enjoys, one hostess has a small card file, indexed by names, in which she keeps a record of her friends' predilections. They marvel how she always remembers every little detail about their tastes, not only in the matter of foods but in other ways. Her answer is simple: she makes a note of little points she discovers about them, jots them down, and, when these guests are expected the next time, she consults her reminder file.

Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Wheeler have as their guest, their daughter, Mrs. Otley McKnight, of Dalhart, Texas.

Miss Margaret Bashore entertained last evening with a dinner announcing the engagement of Miss Bess Greenland to Erwin Hall. The decorations were carried out in white, with bridal wreath, tall cathedral candles and ribbons.

Miss Greenland is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Greenland, of South Jameson avenue. Mr. Hall is a resident of Forsythe, Mont., and has a responsible position in the court house. The wedding will take place in the early fall.

Mrs. Charles Tangle, of Portland, Oregon, formerly of Lima, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Perry Collins, of Collinswood.

Mrs. J. L. Giberson and son Henry, were guests of the week-end of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Miller, of Wapakoneta.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Feiser left yesterday for Roxbury, Pa., to attend the marriage of their son Meyers, to Miss Ruth Hanna. Mr. Feiser is well known about town and is at present a member of the editorial staff of the Cleveland News.

Mrs. Gwen Jones Pence spent the week-end with the Rev. and Mrs. R. L. Campbell, of Poland, O.

BANGOR BROWNIES. One-eighth cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 2 squares of chocolate, 2 eggs, 1-2 cup flour, 1-4 teaspoon baking powder, cup pecans broken in small pieces. Cream butter and sugar; add 2 eggs beaten (but not separated), the chocolate melted over hot water, the flour in which the baking powder has been sifted, and the nuts. Mix in the order given and spread in buttered dripping pan, one measuring about 14 inches by 9 inches being a good size to use. Cut in squares as soon as taken from the oven. In order to have them moist, be careful not to have them bake too long.

Members of the Social Service club were entertained last evening at their regular monthly dinner and business meeting by Miss Inga Johnson of West Market street. About twenty-five members were present. An interesting event of the evening was the reading of a letter from Mrs. Bert Swen, formerly Miss Nellie Potter of Lima. Mrs. Swen is now in the Philippines where her husband is employed as a teacher in the American schools. Mrs. Swen gave a vivid and interesting account of the appearance and customs of the natives of the islands, and also of the unusually good equipment of the public schools. After the letter, Mrs. Sara Douglass gave her monthly report and of the social service convention recently held in Indianapolis which she attended. The final meeting of the club will be held next month at which time plans for the annual summer picnic will be discussed. Guests of the club last evening were the Misses Ruth Bower, and Mary Duffield and Mrs. Earl Thomas of Toledo. Miss Johnson was assisted during the evening by Miss Ruth Parmenter, Miss Mary Longworth and Miss Lucille Orchard.

In the delightful journal of William Byrd of Virginia, written about 1740, we find this bit of social life: "Here I arrived about three o'clock and found only Mrs. Spotswood at home who received her old acquaintance with many a gracious smile. I was carried into a room elegantly set off with pier glasses, the largest of which soon after came to an odd misfortune. Among other favorite animals that cheered this lady's solitude, a brace of tame deer ran familiarly about the house, and one of them came into stare at me as a stranger. But spying his own figure in the glass, he made a spring over the table that stood under it, and shattered the glass to pieces, and falling back . . . made a terrible fracas among the china. This exploit was so sudden, and accompanied with such a noise that it surprised me. But it was worth all the damage to shew the moderation and good humor with which she bore the occurrence."

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Guss were the guests of the week-end of the father of Mr. Guss, O. G. Guss, of Delphos.

Mrs. A. L. Combs entertained over Sunday, Miss Pansy Lorton, of Wapakoneta.

Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Wheeler and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wheeler were guests of Dr. and Mrs. H. G. Stamets, of Delphos.

Miss Florence Kolter, of Wapakoneta, is the guest of the Misses Allene and Palleene Hoyer, of West Market street.

Miss Bessie E. Smith of West Spring street, and Walter W. Kohn of South Scott street, were married yesterday afternoon at the home of the Rev. J. M. Mills, officiating minister.

No one who loves fun, and lots of it, can afford to miss the minstrel show to be given this evening by the Business Women's club, at the Lyric theater.

Interlocutor will be Mrs. Minor M. Keltner, and Mrs. Berda Fritz Ewing and Miss Mildred Rudy will make the most of their opportunities to make you laugh. Other black-faces will be: Mrs. Edgar J. Curtiss Mrs. Hammond, the Misses Oread Wetherill, Lillian Johnston, Dot Wyatt, Mabel Kissell, Irene Buckley Ruth Keating, Miss Neuman and Mrs. Elsie Stout.

A pretty touch will be added by the maidens who will appear in costumes of "Ye colonial days," and who will sing the appropriate minstrel ballads. They will be: Misses Angela Duffey, Mabel Sproul, Margaret Hoagland, Ethel Snider, Helen Wenner, Goldie McBride, Blanche Finley, Mrs. Guy Shaffer, Mrs. Allen Kahle Mowen and Mrs. Ralph Austin.

Excellent support will be given by the chorus, which will include the Misses Mary Quinlan, Evelyn Kunkleman, Ruth Simpson, Alice Moore, Nellie Stiles, Florence Leasure, to

MARRYING A BUTTERFLY

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

Ethel Waves Danger Signals; Ralph Too Blindly in Love to See Them.

"AFTER I HAVE given the work a three months' trial and we have found that everything is mutually satisfactory and is likely to be permanent, with the prospect of a good salary, we can be married at once, can't we?" Ralph Garton caught the hand of the girl at his side in his own.

"What, live in that little town?" asked Ethel Mergage disdainfully.

"Why, if the town gives us our living we will naturally have to live in it," replied Ralph, smiling.

"But why do you get your living there? There is plenty of business in cities," replied Ethel with conviction.

"I might suggest to the Scott-Frazees Co. that they move their manufacturing plant to a larger place," laughed Ralph. "I am sure they would want to live in it, that you objected to living in Fairport."

"Well, I guess the Scott-Frazees Co. is not the only business firm in the world," pouted Ethel, looking archly into the glowing face above her.

"But they offer me the most money, Puss, and money is a necessity for such a luxury-loving little creature as you."

"But what could we do with money in a slow little town?" purred the girl, leaning her head on his shoulder.

Ralph threw back his head and laughed aloud. "From what I have been able to observe of your habits, I should say that you would not find it difficult to get rid of money even in a small place."

"You know what I mean, Stupid." She drew away from him. "There would be no theatres, no opera, no big parties, no—"

"There would be the picture show," interrupted Ralph, teasingly. "You are fond of movies."

She tossed her pretty head and ignored the interruption.

"There is no use of having lovely party dresses with no place to wear them," she continued.

"Don't you care enough for me to give up some of these things in order to be with me?" asked Ralph, becoming serious.

"Love in a cottage never exactly appealed to me." She looked straight into his eyes. "I have an idea I would not be very attractive even to you without my setting."

"Your setting! Why, your setting would be your home." Ralph looked anxiously at her. "I had not planned to have your nest a cottage. If there is nothing there to suit I would build a house for you."

"I'd like that." Ethel's face lighted up. "And if we were married soon I could begin having my showers and getting my clothes ready. All the girls will be envious. They are crazy about you." Ethel did not add that the attitude of the girls toward Ralph constituted one of his chief attractions in her eyes.

"I shall go next week," added her lover, after a pause.

"So soon? I do not want you to go so soon," pouted the girl.

"But I must." The tone was final. She had learned what that tone meant, so said no more.

Ohio Woman, Mrs. Sneath, Candidate For Federation Head

NEW YORK, May 23.—The bustle of several thousand women here to attend the thirteenth biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs are the rival candidates for the presidency, Mrs. Samuel B. Sneath of Tiffin, Ohio, and Mrs. Joseph Evans Cowles of Los Angeles, Calif., and their campaign workers. The election will take place on May 31, and the delegates from Ohio and California will devote the next week to active campaigning.

Judging from the claims of the rival delegations, the contest for the presidency will line up the east against the west. Mrs. Sneath's friends say they are sure of most of the middle western and southern states, while all the Pacific coast and Rocky Mountain delegations are claimed by the followers of Mrs. Cowles. WHEN I WAS with Mr. Griffiths, we were putting on a picture which centered around clairvoyants, palmists, and spiritualists.

"I have always been anxious to have my palm read or to see spirits," I confided to the company, only to discover they were just as eager as I to penetrate the mysteries of the Unseen.

A few evenings later, several of us went to a strange, deserted-looking house, which for phantasm's sake, should have been built at the end of a long lane.

The spiritualist was a queer little woman, with short, bobbed hair, and wore great green goggles, which made her small eyes look very cat-like and beady.

"You are just in time," she said to us in a sepulchral voice, as she led us, unconsciously tiptoeing, into a very dark and dingy room, furnished only with a few rickety chairs and a three-legged table. "Sister Elmira is just going under control."

"What does she control?" Jack whispered in my ear, his eyes as big as saucers, though he assured me in a bravado voice that nothing on earth could terrify him!

"Self control," I snickered back, but the woman's eyes caught mine and she stared me into silence.

"She is controlled by the spirit of an ancient Egyptian queen," was her information.

"Pretty ancient history," Jack whispered in my ear, but by this time the smell of the incense, the darkened room and strange, unexpected tappings and wallings had

The lights went out and left us in total darkness, and then, as if from a great distance, there waited toward us a transparent form. Sotto voce came the echo of the tomb—nearer and nearer and nearer!

"I am Amenophthet, bringing you a message from the other world," the spirit wailed.

So "skinned" was I that I clung awfully close to Jack, especially when the ghost came very close to us and pointing its finger, cried out ominously: "Miserable earth creatures. Shame upon you, unbelievers!"

This time I was quite positive I heard the rattle of Jack's teeth as he clung as close to me as I to him.

"The spirits will revenge themselves upon you," continued the unearthly voice. And even as it spoke the room became totally black, and in the darkness came the whirling of wings. They beat so frantically over my head that I would have ducked under the chair and hidden there if it had been possible to cramp all there was of me into such a small space. Bells rang, spirits moaned and groaned and rattled their chains, then the piercing cries of souls in agony tore like distorted lightning through the air.

"Let's get out!" I shrieked, trying to discover where the rest of our party had gone.

"Yes, let's get out!" echoed Jack. "You must remain," threatened the terrible spirit, at the same time laying upon my neck and arms its icy hands, hands that felt as if they had been chilled in the grave. The only earthly sound was the frightened mew of a cat which I felt was borne upon the shoulders of the old woman—the true Witch of Endor.

Oh, to get out of there, and how to get out of there! That was the only hope we clung to as we jumped around chairs, bumped against the table and called out for our friends' assistance, receiving no reply from them. Finally just as we gave it up in despair, the lights were turned on—and there stood the rest of the company, roaring with laughter, while the old lady with the green goggles took off her wig and pointed at Jack with derision.

He was the daredevil of the studio, a practical joker who had gone to all the trouble of borrowing the little vacant house just for the pleasure of perpetrating this joke.

Often have I been told about the wonderful spiritualistic seances, and some day I am going to one—when I am sure the studio knows nothing of my intended visit.

Answers to Correspondents

Meg.—If you have real talent for music, I would not give up after years of study to become a nurse. It is a very hard life and you may not be strongly enough constituted.

Sarah B.—If you are ambitious to become a moving-picture actress, I would visit the different studios and leave a photograph, description and details of your stage experience. It is a game of "Hide your time."

Margaret F.—Tell your mother for me I am very happy to know she has enjoyed my articles, and only hope I can write on subjects which will be of interest to her. If she has any suggestions, send them to me.

Just Mary.—I am about 5 feet 1 inch in my stocking feet, but, as you say, they generally pick six-footers to be my leading men. Thank you very much for the letter—letters like yours are very encouraging and give me an incentive to work harder toward my dreamed-of goal.

Katherine D.—You would be a very foolish little girl to marry so young. "Marry in haste, repent at leisure," is an old adage, but a wise one. Ask your mother's advice about this.

PROSECUTORS GIVE DELPHOS BRIDGE O.K.

Prosecuting Attorney Ortho O. Barr of Allen county and Clark Good, prosecutor, of Van Wert county, after a visit and inspection to the Fifth street and Seventh street bridges in Delphos, have ruled that the county commissioners may place the bridge to be torn out at Fifth street, over the canal at Seventh street.

Commissioners have been of the belief they would not be permitted to allow abutments built at the expense of the county, under the laws for the construction of bridges. The bridge which has served its purpose at Fifth street will be moved to Seventh street, as there is no bridge over the canal at that point. It will thus provide an outlet for residents in that part of the town.

Work on tearing out the old bridge at Fifth street will begin at once. The contract has been let, but work was postponed until the Seventh street bridge controversy was settled.

DELPHOS PILGRIMS TO VISIT CAREY

A big band of pilgrims from Delphos will join the company which the Rev. Father John Mixer of St. John's Catholic church will conduct to the Shrine of Our Lady of Consolation at Carey on next Sunday. The Delphos Catholics will arrive here on the first car over the Fort Wayne division of the Ohio Electric railway.

The special train which will start over the Lake Erie railroad from Coldwater, Ohio, and run through to Carey, returning that evening, will be held in Lima until such a time as the Delphos pilgrims get aboard. This train will pass south Lima at 7:03 in the morning, and leave the union station at 7:07, provided the Delphos pilgrims are aboard. Otherwise it will be held for their arrival.

Tickets must be purchased of the committee from St. John's church which has the excursion in charge. The Rev. Father Mixer will give all particulars. No tickets can be purchased at the station. These tickets will be exchanged at the station for those good to carry the pilgrims to their destination.

"BERLIN CUT DOWN IRISH REVOLT AID" CAUSE OF FAILURE

Didn't Fulfill All Its Promises of Help, Declares London Story.

Charge is Made Sinn Fein is Used as Pawn by the Teutons.

LONDON, May 23.—This is the history as told by the authorities here of the widespread plot which resulted in the ill-fated uprising in Ireland which plunged the Emerald Isle for a period into a reign of bloodshed and destruction.

It is a story to the effect that the Sinn Fein organization was used as a pawn in the game played by Berlin and certain Germans and revolutionists in America and of how the failure of the revolt was made doubly sure by the inability or disinclination on the part of Germany to carry out important features of the plan at almost the last moment.

The facts given here have been gathered from authentic British sources and are presented as completely as possible under the censorship.

The plot had its inception shortly after the beginning of the war, when certain Irishmen and German authorities conceived the idea of utilizing the Sinn Fein organization for a revolt—the Germans being actuated, of course, by the admittedly legitimate purpose of weakening Great Britain, and the others having national aspirations or, in at least one case, a desire to obtain revenge for alleged political wrongs suffered at the hands of England.

At that time the Sinn Feiners, who really had organized because of jealousy of the nationalist volunteers, probably had no definite idea of starting a revolt. They accepted the plan, however, and eventually fell victims to a scheme which was not of their own making.

The name of Sir Roger Casement appears prominently throughout the story.

Sir Roger went from America to Christiania late in 1914 under an assumed name. At Christiania he conferred with the German consul and then proceeded direct to Germany with his Norwegian servant. Coincidentally with his arrival in Berlin, certain officials placed their influence and guarantees of assistance back of an Irish rebellion.

It was thought at that time that a revolution could be made successful and elaborate plans for furthering the movement were put under way.

According to this account, Germany agreed to furnish money, arms and men to assist the Sinn Feiners and, most important of all, is said to have agreed to an invasion of England which would prevent soldiers being sent into Ireland by the British war department.

America was made the medium of communication between Berlin and Ireland. Certain Irishmen in the United States enlisted their services and Capt. Boy-Ed and Von Papen, the German naval and military attaches respectively at Washington, together with numerous others, some of whom are under arrest in America, are said to have done their part in furthering the plans.

The carrying of funds and information to the Sinn Feiners was done largely by Irish sympathizers in America who were able to visit their home land without question.

Shortly after Casement's arrival in Germany the statement appeared in the German papers that his servant had been making trips to Christiania to visit the British authorities for the purpose of delivering Casement over to them. At the same time, Sir Roger published his charges that the British ambassador at Christiania had tried to have him assassinated.

This was the first news the British public had received of Casement's presence in Germany. His accusations against the British minister are said to have been the initial step in a publicity campaign to gain sympathy.

The next intelligence received in London concerning Sir Roger was brought by returning soldiers, who reported that he was going about the prison camps and trying to recruit Irish soldiers to fight against England.

He is said to have obtained a few acceptances, but some men agreed to his proposition and were immediately given their freedom and furnished with the green uniform of the Sinn Feiners.

He proceeded direct to Germany without touching England.

He brought word that a definite date for the uprising must be set and plans laid to meet that date. This was agreed to and either Easter Sunday or Easter Monday was fixed upon. This meant that the scheme must be completed speedily.

As the time neared it was seen that a revolution could not be made a success and the idea of an invasion was virtually discarded. This fact was not known to the Sinn Feiners until almost the moment before the fighting started. However, certain Berlin officials had given their word to assist the movement and decided to satisfy the obligation as far as possible without heavy loss of life or war material.

Easter approached and it was proposed to dispatch a ship to Ireland with arms and those Irish soldiers who had agreed to fight. A naval attack on the east coast of England and air raids also were settled upon to divert the attention of the British authorities from Ireland.

The ship, with some 20,000 arms, did start from Kiel for Tralee, on the western coast of Ireland, but it was manned by a German crew and did not carry the Irish recruits.

When Sir Roger found that the plan for an invasion of England had fallen through, he refused to let his followers embark, declaring it would be sheer murder. He did agree to go himself, however, and departed on the submarine.

The fate of the ship of arms and of Casement has been told. Sir Roger and associates fell into the hands of the British at Tralee and the ship was sunk.

The naval attack and air raids on the English coast were carried out, but the Sinn Feiners found themselves espousing in a hopeless cause.

OPENS SUMMER COTTAGE.

Undertaker C. E. Eckert, of South Main street, was at Sassafras Point in Indian Lake yesterday, where he went to make preparations for the opening of the cottage there within a few weeks. A new motor boat to convey passengers from Lakeview to this cottage has been purchased and installed.

The cottage is owned and occupied each year by the families of C. E. and George W. Eckert, Albert E. Gale, John H. Harley and the Botkins family.

WIFE SHOOK AND BEAT HIM, CHARGED

David Burget Declares His Spouse Would Not Let Him Sleep.

That she shook and beat him and would not let him secure a good night's rest, was the plea set up by David H. Burget, tinner, of 269 East Pearl street, in his answer and cross petition to the divorce of Maude Burget, of 727 North Main street, filed in court on May 16.

In his answer filed today, he says that on April 1 of last year they agreed to live separate and apart and settled the alimony and property rights privately.

He asks her petition be dismissed and that he be given the decree.

Grace A. Ganshaw, for her cause of action against Frederick Ganshaw, says that for more than three years he has been willfully absent. His treatment of her was so cruel she was compelled to leave their home, seek employment and support herself, she claims.

They were married in Lima on February 20, 1912, and have no children. She asks for a decree and the restoration of her maiden name of Grace Rupert.

JURY COMMISSION NAMED.

J. P. Miller, democrat, and Frank Wallace, republican, have been re-appointed as members of the Allen county jury commission for the coming year. The term began yesterday.

They will certify the list of names to be drawn from the jury wheel for service the next year.

BREAKS BOTTLE AND FIGHTS, IS FINED

Barney Smith, 49, arrested last night by Patrolmen Bridge and Kinker on a charge of fighting and breaking a bottle on the street, received a hearing in criminal court this morning. On a plea of guilty to the charges he was fined $5 and costs. When arrested he had five bottles of whiskey on his person, and on nearing the police station he threw one of the bottles to the street.

ADMITS $90 THEFT, TO RETURN CASH

Sam Waitkus, arrested last night by Patrolman Dreesch on a charge of grand larceny, pleaded guilty to stealing $90 from the room of Dom'io Veebor, of 219 West Fourth street. Upon the request of the latter the prisoner was allowed his freedom when he confessed to the theft and agreed to return the money.

When Waitkus was arrested last night and later searched at police headquarters, four $20 bills were found in one of his shoes and a $10 bill was located in his pocketbook. Waitkus claimed that he was drunk and did not know what he was doing.

RUNYAN ASKS THAT RECEIVER BE NAMED

Ralph R. Runyan, who, with Harry W. Spayde, conducts the Ohio Builders' Supply and Coal company at 436 North Main street, sued for equitable relief and asked for a receiver for the firm, which he declared is insolvent. Runyan asked in his petition that the firm be adjudged dissolved and the receiver dispose of the stock of building material, brick, roofing, coal, horses, vehicles, book accounts and personal property.

L. J. Lehman was named as receiver by Judge John P. Bailey and F. E. Wood, Fred Good and Henry S. Enck were named as appraisers. Lehman gave bond in the sum of $5,000 when the case was heard this morning and took full charge of the affairs of the concern.

MORTON CASE RESTS.

The plaintiff rested their case in the trial of Lester L. Morton against the Chicago and Erie railroad, when court closed at noon today. However, they retained the privilege to call Morton to the witness stand again, if he is needed. The railroad company began calling their witnesses to testify after the noon recess. Morton is suing for damages, alleging personal injuries. The case was transferred to the basement court room this morning. Judge John P. Bailey is presiding.

SCHOOL ART DISPLAY IS ON EXHIBITION

The school art display made up of work done in each grade in the various school buildings of the city, was shown this morning at the Emerson building on North Jefferson street and this afternoon at the Longfellow building on Shawnee street. The Franklin building at the high school grounds will house the exhibit tomorrow and on Thursday it will be placed at the Irving building on Grand avenue. Friday it will be shown at the Garfield building on West High street.

The display was shown yesterday at Horace Mann school in the old college building and at the Richardson school on Charles street. The display consists of drawings and paintings. Even the first year pupils are proud their work is included in the display. Paintings and pen and ink sketches are shown. Miss Beale Kelly, supervisor of art in the city schools, is in charge of the exhibit and speaks to the parents and children on benefits to be obtained from the teaching of art in the public school system.

Pauline Frederick Electrifies in Famous Players-Paramount Powerful Screen Version of Israel Zangwill's "The Moment Before."

Those who have seen Pauline Frederick in "Zaza," "The Spider," and "Audrey," and her numerous other notable screen successes will welcome her as Madge, a charming, alluring gypsy girl, and the central character of Israel Zangwill's remarkable drama, "The Moment Before," gives Miss Frederick the opportunity of revealing another true-to-life character to the motion picture public. As the plot is laid in England, with a large part of the action occurring in Australia, R. G. Vignola, the director, showed remarkable judgment in selecting Florida as the setting for this latest Famous Players-Paramount photodrama.

Following the story as it is unravelled in the absorbing scenes of the photoplay, we find Madge married to a brutal gypsy, whom she abhors with all her heart. While hunting on the private property of the Duke of Maldon, Madge and her husband, John, are confronted with arrest. Harold, the youngest son of the Duke sees the attractive maid in distress; hearing the charge against them he pardons the captured couple. Fascinated by each other, Madge and Harold meet several times and are finally caught by John. A fight is avoided by the quick wit of the girl. After a quarrel with her husband, in which he is stabbed, Madge seeks the mansion of Harold, fearing the wrath of her victim. Employment is given the refugee in the Duke's household, much to the sorrow of Lionel, Harold's older brother and heir to the Maldon estates. The angered John, in quest of his wife, finds her in the clutches of Lionel, who is striving to force the unwelcome servant to leave. John, misunderstanding the actions of Lionel, seizes the fire-tongs and strikes the aspiring heir dead.

From this dramatic point to the climax, which is overwhelming in its dramatic strength, the story increases in interest and the proper degree of power is maintained throughout the splendid supporting cast which includes: Thomas Holding, Frank Losee and J. W. Johnston.

Police to Play the Firemen

When the local firemen and policemen line-up for the game of ball, Friday, June 16, at McBeth's park, it is likely that it will be necessary to call out the militia, as a result of the rivalry between the two departments of the city. The game falls on the big day of the Firemen's convention picnic at the park. The firemen will line-up as follows: Lovett and Duggan, pitchers; Taffinger, c. Curtis, 1b; Meeks, 2b; Barrett, 3b; Ridenour, ss; Burr, cf; Morrow, rf; Casey, lf and Chief John Mack, manager. The police line-up: ASK FOR AND GET KRE-MO STERILIZED RICE. tu-th-sat

A NEW USE FOR LETTERS B.P.O.E.

"Babies' Protection Our Endeavor," is the Latest SLOGAN OF COLUMBUS ELKS Benefit Jubilee From June 1 to 10 inclusive to Be the Biggest Event in the History of the State—Half of the Proceeds to Go to Children's Hospital Fund—Packard Co. to Be Given Away.

Columbus, O.—(Special).—New use has been found for the initial letters of Benevolent Order of Elks—B. P. O. E.—and there has come into existence the slogan, "Babies' Protection Our Endeavor," as the one which is to make the benefit jubilee, June 1 to 10, inclusive, the biggest event of its kind in the history of the state, or even of all Elksdom. The Columbus lodge has thrown itself heartily into the enterprise of helping out the Children's hospital by raising a large sum to help complete the fund started in the Capital City a few weeks ago. Half of the proceeds of the jubilee, after expenses are paid, is to be devoted towards the Children's hospital fund and half is to go to the charity fund of the Columbus Lodge of Elks, to be kept for future contingencies.

ness men will vie with each other in marching gear that will amuse the people. Wives, mothers and sisters of Elks will furnish an Elks' parcel post, which will be one of the features. Every package will be sold before in rejection. To give real zest to the jubilee, however, a Packard touring car, valued at $2,750, will be given away on the final day. The car has already been secured and is on exhibition at the new Dealer hotel.

Leipsic to Open Season

The baseball season in Leipsic will be opened with a big program on Decoration day. The opponents of the Leipsic lads on this date will be Bluffton, which is making great preparations for the contest. Preceding the contest a parade headed by a band of 52 pieces and followed by Boy Scouts and other orders in uniform, will march to the ball park. Here the mayor will make an address and toss the first ball over the pan. The lineup of both of the teams will be practically the same as that in former years. However, Bluffton has imported "Red" Wright, former pitcher for the Cleveland American club, to take the mound. Smith and Edwards will form the battery for Leipsic. Payne to Play Lima Next Game

Manager Callahan of the Lima Independents, has booked the Payne ball club to assist in staging the second exhibition of the national pastime, at Murphy street park, this season. The game will be called at 2 o'clock, Sunday afternoon, May 28. Local fans who witnessed the contest at the park between the local club and Springfield, last Sunday, are convinced that Lima is represented by a good team. However, since the Payne team has won three straight this season, defeating Fort Wayne, Defiance and Toledo, it is to be seen that the Lima boys will have to extend themselves to win. Queer Electric Troubles. The high-tension transmission lines, passing through the interior of islands of Japan are seriously embarrassed at times by the short circuits caused by crows and snakes. The birds alight on the wires and cross-arms and cause the trouble by making the contacts while stretching their wings, and the snakes crawl up the poles for the purpose of sunning themselves. Belmonts Win From North End

The Belmonts won their second game of the season Sunday, when they defeated the North Side Stars in a ten-inning game by a score of 8 to 7. The stick work of McClintock, Jahosky and Hillari featured. Although the Belmonts were one run in the lead in the eighth inning, their opponents came back strong in the ninth and tied the score. In the tenth Jahosky doubled, stole third and scored on Hillari's single, winning the contest. Summary: North Stars . . . 0 3 0 0 3 0 1 0 7. Belmonts . . . 0 3 0 0 2 0 2 0 1 8. Batteries: Munk and Tanks; Rockhill, Black and Jahosky; doubles, Jahosky and Shappell; stolen bases, Hillari 2, Black, Emerson, Miller, struck out, by Munk 4, by Rockhill 10; umpire, Goebble.

EXTENSION SCHOOLS CAN BE SECURED. Extension or movable agricultural schools sent out by the Ohio State University at Columbus are available to the granges or farmer's clubs of the county. Organizations desiring to conduct a school for a week on the latest and best ideas of farming should send their applications to the Agriculture College Extension Service, Ohio State University, Columbus. The schools are distributed over the state, but an application to be considered must be made at an early date. Instructions from the College of Agriculture are sent with each school.

Incredible. "I was talking with Professor Hoobis last night. You know he's just back from an exploring expedition to Central Africa." "Did he make any important discoveries?" "Well, he says he found a race of people so uncivilized that they had never heard of moving pictures."

There isn't a merchant in this city that will not do the right thing by the public. The people should keep by keeping their money in Lima. W. K. KLINGLER DRUG CO. Cor. Main and Spring Phone Main 5342 Magazines Stationery

Champ Team Wins From Chi. Club

CHICAGO, May 23.—After Hendrix had sprinted to second on his double in the 5th and then home on Schultes single, he lost his effectiveness and Philadelphia aided by Chicago's errors won 5 to 3. HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG. Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea. Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair. A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful. This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Old Heads Are Minus In League

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky., May 23.—Unique in the annals of professional baseball will be the 1916 season of the K. I. T. (Kitty) league, scheduled to open today with Hopkinsville, Ky., playing at Clarksville, Tenn.; Dawson Springs, Ky., at Madisonville, Ky., and Henderson, Ky., at Owensboro, Ky. The league, recognized by the National Association of Professional Ball leagues as a class D organization, will number among the players on each team but one man who has professional experience, he to be the manager. A low salary limit has been adopted and President Frank Bassett of Hopkinsville, predicts a successful season. WAS TROUBLED AT NIGHT. Painful, annoying bladder weakness usually indicates kidney trouble. So do backache, rheumatism, sore, swollen or stiff muscles of joints. Such symptoms have been relieved by Foley Kidney Pills. READING KEEPS ON
UP ON WALL ST.

NEW YORK, May 23.—Reading continued its spectacular movement to higher levels on the resumption of trading today, opening with a block of 6,000 shares at 110 1/4, against previous record price of 109 1/4, made on the preceding day, then making a further gain at 110 1/4. From this price it fell back over a point but soon rallied. There were heavy dealings also in Union Pacific, St. Paul, Wabash issues, U. S. Steel and some of the war shares, all at variable gains. Mercantile Marine preferred, Baldwin Locomotive, Mexican Petroleum and Industrial Alcohol, reflected the heaviness of special stocks.

The broad and general advance of the first hour which embraced all rails of prominence invited heavy profit-taking with reactions of 1 to 2 points. Reading fell back to 109 1/4 and became relatively inactive. Mexicans strengthened materially later with a rise of two points for American Smelting. Among specialties, however, the movement continued somewhat mixed. New high records were made by Chandler Motors and Underwood Typewriter at par and 106 respectively. United States Steel continued backward and the munitions group was exceedingly irregular. Bonds were firm.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS
Take a Tablespoonful of Salts if Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.
We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.
The kidneys of their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.
When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pain in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.
Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

FOREIGN ADVICES
LOWER WHEAT RATE

CHICAGO, May 23.—Lower quotations from Liverpool, with favorable weather in this country brought about fresh declines today in the wheat market here.
Opening prices, which ranged from 1/4 @ 1/2 to 1/2 @ 1/2, with July at $1.08 to $1.08 1/2, and September at $1.08 1/2 to $1.08 1/2, were followed by rallies but had additional declines.
Illinois reports that planting to a considerable extent had been finished necessarily made the corn market relatively firm. At the outset, however, the chief influence was the barish action of wheat. After opening 1/4 to 1/2 lower, prices gradually recovered.
Good crop advices kept the oats market easy. There was free selling both of near and deferred deliveries.
Weakness of the hog market depressed provisions. The main buying was on the part of shorts.
The wheat close was steady at $1.09 1/2 for July and $1.09 1/2 @ 1.10 for September, and with the market at a whole 1/4 off to 1/2 higher as compared with yesterday's finish.
Corn prices closed steady at 1/2 and 1/2 @ 1/2 net advance.
The close was:
Wheat, July 1.09 1/2; Sept. 1.09 1/2; Corn, July 71 1/2; Sept. 70.
Oats, July 40 1/2; Sept. 38 1/2.

WOMAN ENDS LIFE; ESTATE IS $60,000
CLEVELAND, O., May 23.—Miss Jennie Bogart, 38, was found dead in the bath room of her home here today. Police say she committed suicide by asphyxiation. An open gas jet and a gas hose leading to her mouth showed the manner in which she ended her life, police say. Relatives say she brooded over the death of her mother a week ago.
Miss Bogart, according to her brother, leaves an estate worth $60,000.

ATHLETICS GOOD NERVE TONIC

Practically every man who has been through the ordeal agrees that the best cure for a period in the trenches is healthy outdoor exercise which explains why it is that back at the base camps, where the regiments are sent after their period of duty on the firing line, foot ball is flourishing as it never flourished among so many men before. In both the British and French army organizations, officers are especially detailed to see that the men back from the front get out into the open and replenish through participation in varied forms of athletics the nerve cells which can be best repaired through sending the blood coursing through the system.—Juno Outing.

AUSTRIAN CHEMISTS MAKE GOOD CLOTH OF NETTLE FIBERS

Find Sugar and Cattle Feed
Can be Made From Plant.

Process of Separating Useful Part From Stalks
Long Problem.

BERLIN, May 22.—That a nettle fiber of high value for making textiles can be recovered easily and cheaply by the water-rotting process, that a rich yield of fruit sugar is thereby secured from the plants, and that the stems make an excellent fodder, is the triple discovery of Prof. Oswald, Richter, an Austrian chemist.

He came to his discovery after some 15 years of experimenting with ammonia solutions, only to find at last that the fiber could be separated by rotting the plants in water. It all depends, however, upon knowing how to supply the water. Investigators had all along made the mistake of assuming that nettles must be rotted like flax, that is, they must be thrown into water and left there till the plants were sufficiently rotted to permit the separation of fiber and wood. But this method failed completely with nettles, for the rotting process attacked the fiber as well as destroyed it.

Richter found out the reason. Nettles contain much fruit sugar, which is all steeped out during the first half-day that the plants lie in water, and then a fermentation process sets in. This fermentation is due to the development of bacteria that feed upon the sugar and then destroy the value of the fiber. After Richter established those facts he had only to draw off the water after soaking the nettles for 12 hours, and then turn on fresh water. Now another class of bacteria, which do not attack the fiber, is developed, and rotting proceeds normally as with flax.

The machinery for separating fiber and stalk is the same as for hemp, and existing spinning and weaving machines are used in making nettle cloth, with probably a few minor changes. The cloth is already being actually made in Austria. About 1,000 tons of the fiber was produced there last year under the auspices of the government, which turned it over to various factories to be worked up. It is claimed that the fibers are from 2 to 12 inches long. After having been washed in a soap solution they are very soft and produce a cloth having a fine luster. The yarn is pronounced considerably stronger than flax yarn, hence nettle cloth should prove remarkably durable.

While the supply of wild nettles in Germany and Austria is practically inexhaustible, it is assumed that it will be necessary to cultivate the plant in order to get the best results. In that case practically the only expense will be to plant the fields once with roots of the wild nettle and harvest the crops during the next ten years, no further planting being necessary. A German writer estimates that under the least favorable circumstances nettle fiber can be laid down at the factory at 14 cents a pound, which is hardly more than the average price of cotton in Germany before the war. But his calculation ignores the value of the fruitsugar and the refuse. As Richter found that the sugar contained in the bark of the plant runs as high as 8 per cent, he concludes that it is one of the most valuable sugar plants known in Europe. Also he found that cattle prefer the stems to most other kinds of feed; and the leaves are also eaten by them with relish. In view of these facts it would seem that the practical cost of the spinning fiber might be considerably reduced below the figure mentioned.

Richter assumes his discovery will yield equally satisfactory results with ramie, which has hitherto baffled all efforts to find a cheap and workable method for separating its fiber plant in existence it will at once spring into the foremost rank as a commercial fiber producer, if Richter's expectations should be realized. Between nettles and ramie, therefore, there is danger that America cotton may meet with strong competition. There is already considerable optimism in Austria and Germany about nettles. The Austria and Hungarian governments have taken steps to have nettle fields planted. The city authorities of Muenchen-Gladbach, one of the chief centers of the German cotton industry, have had a considerable area planted in nettles, and Dueseldorf has also set aside land for that purpose.

M. E. PERIODICALS NOT PAYING WAY

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., May 23.—A protracted meeting over the management of the Methodist Book Concern was expected at today's session of the general conference, following the submission of a committee report recommending the continuance of all the periodicals now published under church auspices.

The minority requested the conference to adopt a plan for combining seven of these papers into four, to be published at New York, Chicago, San Francisco and Portland, Oregon. A loss of nearly $350,000 was incurred during the last year, according to figures offered to the conference. Opponents to a change assert this was due largely to the system of book-keeping.

LONG TIME ON THE WAY.
CLEVELAND, May 23.—A postal card mailed eight years ago in New York by Dr. Rudolph Tombo, professor at Columbia university, was received here a few days ago. The card was addressed to J. H. Gerlich, former secretary of Goethe Schiller Verein, now a resident of Evansville, Indiana. The card was exhibited at a meeting today of Goethe Schiller Verein. Dr. Tombo is dead.

Run-down?
—Tired?
—Weak?

Every Spring most people feel "all out of sorts" and their vitality is at a low ebb. Through the winter months shut up a great deal in heated houses, office, or factory, with little healthy exercise in the great outdoors—eating more than necessary—the blood becomes surcharged with poisons! The best Spring medicine and tonic is one made of herbs and roots without alcohol—that was first discovered by Dr. Pierce—years ago. Made of Golden Seal root, blood root, with glycerine, it is called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Ingredients on wrapper. It eliminates from the blood disease-breeding poisons. It makes the blood rich and pure, and furnishes a foundation for sound, physical health.

Ashtabula, Ohio.—"I used Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery as a 'spring medicine.' It was advertised to cleanse the blood and tone up the system. I found it just as represented and was glad I used it. I am very pleased to recommend it."—MR. W. W. SMITH, 601 Lake St., Ashtabula, Ohio.

Masonville, Ohio.—"Three years ago I had bad stomach trouble and rheumatism. I used other remedies which did not do much for me. Then I began using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It proved a good medicine for rheumatism and cured my stomach trouble. It helped me wonderfully and cured the pains."—Mrs. S. J. McLAUGHLIN, Mill St., Masonville, Ohio.

UNDERWOOD TARIFF BRINGS GREATEST TRADE BALANCE GAIN IN U. S. HISTORY

During the 30 months ending March 31, 1916, in which the Underwood-Simmons tariff law had been in operation, exports exceeded imports by $2,936,991,972. During the last 30 months of the Payne-Aldrich tariff, ending September 30, 1913, exports exceeded imports by $1,463,673,563. That is to say, the favorable trade balance of the United States during two and one-half years of the democratic tariff act exceeded that of the last two and one-half years of the republican tariff by 109 per cent.

This is the greatest percentage of increase and the greatest volume both in gain and in total in the history of the world's commerce.

Our international trade balance is still piling up at the rate of over $150,000,000 monthly, or $1,800,000,000 per annum.

Do the business men—farmers, workmen, bankers, miners, manufacturers and merchants—of this country want this good work to go on undisturbed?

Or, do they want to see it halted by that great destroyer of commercial peace and prosperity—a campaign of tariff agitation, such as rep. bilious managers now threaten?

If you prefer an undisturbed era of this business prosperity, you will vote to continue the present democratic laws and administration.

J. S. HOOK, VETERAN OF G. A. R., IS DEAD

Funeral services for James S. Hook, 72 years old, who died last night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John J. Sparling of 932 Brice avenue, will be held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the daughter's home. Interment will be in Woodlawn. Mr. Hook was a member of the Mart Armstrong Grand Army of the Republic, and that organization will attend in a body. He will be buried with military honors.

ITALIANS DESTROY AEROPLANE

ROME, May 23.—A naval flying squadron defeated and burned an enemy aeroplane in the upper Adriatic, says a semi-official dispatch.

FRENCH WOMEN ARE MAKING MUNITIONS

100,900 Quickly Take Up
What the Men Once
Did.

PARIS, May 23.—The whole number of women employed in munition making in France, according to the secretary for munitions is 109,300. Of these 26,293 are in state factories. A very large proportion have had to learn their business from the beginning.

In other directions the secretary says, the branches to which French women have mostly taken are food industries, textile and the metal trades, but many also are working in rubber and at sack-making.

Frenchwomen, the secretary says, learn very quickly, particularly the use of the smaller machines which in some cases they master in a day; and as a class they are not very strong they are, in compensation, very handy. Speaking of the successful way in which the wives of mobilized wholesale and retail merchants, shopkeepers and other traders have carried on their husbands' business, the secretary explains it by a fact not very generally known abroad.

"The mobilization of husbands and male relatives," he says, "increased the responsibility of the wife without producing any disorder or crisis. One should know, in fact, that the family in France is based on a close co-operation between husband and wife in industrial and commercial enterprises. As a rule the husband keeps the wife fully informed about his undertakings and looks on her generally as his best adviser. This state of things is one of the great forces of resistance to national disorganization and has not seldom saved the nation at critical periods of its home and foreign history during past centuries."

After noting that figures show a progressive return to the normal condition of things in agriculture, cattle raising, and milk products before the war, the secretary concludes:

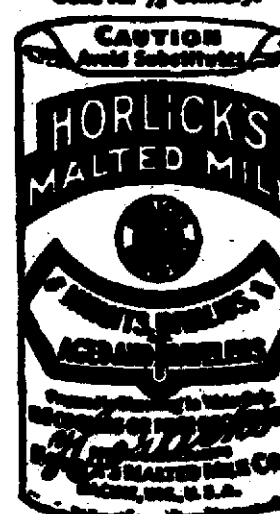

"Neither the wealth nor the resisting power of France, nor its future position in the world, has been affected by the unjust aggression which was meant for their destruction. On the contrary, the French feel more solidarity than ever, the female part of the population showing as much energy in the peaceful tasks imposed on them from day to day as the male population is showing in the operations of war."
